Life At Arcurve

We totally get it. You're a student – we don't expect you to come in with a glossy resume detailing many years of experience. However, what we do require is for you to demonstrate:

- An interest in all things technical – have you made anything? What did you learn?
  - The desire to learn new things
- Creativity – in most anything you do
  - The ability to work in a team
  - Problem solving skills
- The desire to contribute to our culture: we like to give back to our community and you'll be asked to help
  - Curiosity: ask questions!
- The desire to contribute to a peer-based organization

An internship at Arcurve isn't a spectator sport. Right from day one, you'll be actively engaged in real-life business projects with our team of talented professionals who will mentor you and help you kick-start your career. Our interns develop broad technology skill sets, solid business acumen and professionalism in a fun, friendly environment.
